CAMPUS NORTH RESIDENTIAL COMMONS HARD HAT TOUR
3–4 p.m.
Smart Museum, Lobby, 5550 S. Greenwood Ave.
Opening in fall 2016, Campus North Residential Commons will house 800 undergraduates. Designed by the renowned Chicago firm Studio Gang Architects, it will create a new entrance from Hyde Park into the north end of campus and feature on-site retail, two large classrooms, and the Frank and Laura Baker Dining Commons. Because the residential commons is an active construction site, all tour participants must be 18 or older on the day of the tour and wear flat, hard-soled, closed-toe shoes. We also request that you refrain from taking photos during the tour. Required safety equipment (hard hat, gloves, vest, and protective eyewear) will be provided at the beginning of the tour. Late entry to and early departure from the tour will not be permitted. In addition, as an active construction site, Campus North is not yet universally accessible; however, it will be upon completion of construction in fall 2016. For more information about Campus North’s planned accommodations, please contact College Housing at collegehousing@uchicago.edu.

THURSDAY
JUNE 2

MURDER MOST FOUL: HAMLET THROUGH THE AGES
1–2 p.m.
Ida Noyes Hall, Max Palevsky Cinema, 1212 E. 59th St.
David Bevington, Phyllis Fay Horton Distinguished Service Professor Emeritus, Department of English Language and Literature

Hamlet is a profoundly Christian young man. He knows that his religion counsels against suicide in all circumstances. The agony he experiences over his father’s apparent murder troubles him greatly in matters of faith: How is he to proceed with his father’s command to revenge the murder? Can the ghost he encounters be a demon masquerading as his dead father? How is he to act? The one blow he strikes in an attempt to kill his uncle turns out to have been a serious mistake. Is heaven at work in using him for its purposes? Where does he go from here? And how does his providential view of his choices and his eventual fate compare with that of his dearest friend, Horatio?

INTERSECTIONS
2:30–3:00 p.m.
Ida Noyes Hall, Max Palevsky Cinema, 1212 E. 59th St.
Jessica Stockholder, Raymond W. and Martha Hilpert Gruner Distinguished Service Professor and Chair, Department of Visual Arts

Jessica Stockholder will speak about her most recent work—which is installed at an intersection—and is also resonant with intersections metaphorically. She will share images of the work and speak about the process of making it and how we understand it to be meaningful.
A CENTURY OF HIGHER LEARNING:
THE UNIVERSITY AND ITS HISTORIES
11:30 a.m.–12:30 p.m.
Ida Noyes Hall, Max Palevsky Cinema, 1212 E. 59th St.
John W. Boyer, AM’69, PhD’75, Martin A. Ryerson
Distinguished Service Professor, Department of History;
Dean of the College
Since the presidency of William Rainey Harper, the University of Chicago has cultivated a powerful and distinct identity marked by intellectual rigor, merit, and free debate. In this talk, based on his recently published book The University of Chicago: A History (University of Chicago Press), College dean John W. Boyer, AM’69, PhD’75, shows that this identity is profoundly interwoven with the University’s history—a history that is unique in the annals of American higher education.

THE ART OF PUBLIC SPEAKING
2:00–2:30 p.m.
Ida Noyes Hall, Max Palevsky Cinema, 1212 E. 59th St.
Sian Beilock, Vice Provost for Academic Initiatives;
Stella M. Rowley Professor, Department of Psychology
What happens in our brain and body when we speak in front of others and experience performance anxiety? What are we doing differently when everything clicks into place? And what specific techniques should we use to ensure our best performance when it matters most? In an energetic tour of the latest neuroscience, psychology professor Sian Beilock explains why we blunder when all eyes are on us and—more importantly—what we can do to ensure that we put our best foot forward when the pressure is on.

JEWISH MUSIC IN SPITE OF ITSELF
3–4 p.m.
Ida Noyes Hall, Max Palevsky Cinema, 1212 E. 59th St.
Philip V. Bohlman, Ludwig Rosenberger Distinguished Service Professor, Department of Music; Associate Faculty, Divinity School
Is there such a thing as Jewish music? Few debates have troubled the performance and study of music more. The reasons to keep Jewish music out of the canon—and out of the core—were many until recent years. Drawing on his own teaching at the University of Chicago and on his work as the artistic director of the New Budapest Orpheum Society, the Grammy-nominated ensemble in residence of the Humanities Division, Philip Bohlman will trace the ways Jewish music, in spite of itself, has made the core truly uncommon and exceptional.

PROVENANCE: THE ARTIST’S HAND,
THE SCIENTIST’S GAZE
3:30–4:30 p.m.
Ida Noyes Hall, Max Palevsky Cinema, 1212 E. 59th St.
Melina Blees, Postdoctoral Scholar,
STAGE @ Institute for Molecular Engineering
Nancy Kawalek, Professor and Distinguished Fellow in the Arts, Science, and Technology, Institute for Molecular Engineering
Anne Leonard, Curator and Associate Director of Academic Initiatives, Smart Museum of Art
Works of art pose many questions that neither art nor science alone can answer. This lively discussion will explore the sleuthing, the drama, the politics, and the science behind determining the attribution and authenticity of paintings.

FRIDAY

SOFTWARE AND HARDWARE SYSTEMS RESEARCH TOWARD PRACTICAL QUANTUM COMPUTING
10–11 a.m.
Ida Noyes Hall, Max Palevsky Cinema, 1212 E. 59th St.
Fred Chong, Seymour Goodman Professor of Computer Architecture, Department of Computer Science
Recent announcements by IBM, Google, Intel, and D-Wave reflect a growing interest in quantum computation. More than ever, computer scientists have the opportunity to help accelerate the evolution of quantum technologies toward practical large-scale systems. In this talk, computer architecture professor Fred Chong will present a basic tutorial of quantum computation, some lessons learned in his research, and future directions in the design of architectures and software for scalable quantum computation.
STopping by Rothko: Considering the Enhancement and Endangerment of Life
11:00–11:30 a.m.
Ida Noyes Hall, Max Palevsky Cinema, 1212 E. 59th St.
Kristine A. Culp, PhD'89, Associate Professor of Theology; Dean, Disciples Divinity House
In his 2015 book, Christopher Rothko tells of his father, the master abstract expressionist Mark Rothko, imagining small chapels across the country “where the lone traveler could stop and encounter one of his paintings.” Might stopping by Rothko’s paintings, such as the one in the University’s Smart Museum, enable profound consideration of life, its endangerment and enhancement, in our different time?

Critical Computation: Machine Learning and Questions of Quality in Art and Design
1:30–2:00 p.m.
Ida Noyes Hall, Max Palevsky Cinema, 1212 E. 59th St.
Jason Salavon, Associate Professor, Department of Visual Arts; Fellow, Computation Institute
Sean Keller, Associate Professor and Director of History and Theory, IIT College of Architecture
Algorithms have aided the creation of artworks for centuries. While advancements in computation have expanded these interactions, the full implications of algorithmic processes for art have yet to be understood. Join Jason Salavon and Sean Keller as they discuss their Neubauer Collegium for Culture and Society project, which explores machine learning methods for visual art and design.

Fostering a Culture of Innovative Problem-Solving
2:30–3:30 p.m.
Ida Noyes Hall, Max Palevsky Cinema, 1212 E. 59th St.
Anjali Adukia, Assistant Professor, University of Chicago Harris School of Public Policy
Nicole Anderson, Assistant Director of Fellow Experience, UChicago International Innovation Corps
Last fall Chicago Harris welcomed rising star faculty member Anjali Adukia and partnered with the International Innovation Corps, which offers policy students a bridge between the classroom and the field. Learn about Adukia’s research and the work she does with NGOs, including UNICEF, the World Bank, and the Indian organization Manav Sadhna, which supports the Indian government’s ambitious pledge to bring separate toilets for boys and girls to every school in the country. You will also hear from International Innovation Corps’ Nicole Anderson, who will provide a glimpse of the fieldwork that fellows are working on, which is at the nexus of policy, research, and practice.
Join University of Chicago faculty, staff, students, and alumni to learn about exciting initiatives, research, and collaborations with the campus community, city, and beyond. All sessions feature an audience Q&A.

FRIDAY

JUNE 3

THE STATE OF THE ARTS
1–2 p.m.
Oriental Institute, Breasted Hall, 1155 E. 58th St.
Bill Brown, Deputy Provost for the Arts
Bill Michel, AB’92, MBA’08, University Arts Advisor; Executive Director, Reva and David Logan Center for the Arts
Building on the extraordinary steps that have been taken in developing the arts on campus, the University is now envisioning a future that will expand the many ways in which artistic practice can inspire creative intelligence across all fields. Hear from deputy provost for the arts Bill Brown; University arts advisor Bill Michel AB’92, MBA’08; and a few of their colleagues on the impact UChicago Arts is having on campus, throughout Chicago, and beyond.

ARTS, SCIENCE, AND CULTURE INITIATIVE
2:30–3:30 p.m.
Oriental Institute, Breasted Hall, 1155 E. 58th St.
Julie Marie Lemon, MLA’07, Program Director and Curator of the Arts, Science, and Culture Initiative
Carl Fuldner, PhD Candidate Art History
Shane DuBay, PhD Candidate Evolutionary Biology
Francisco Castillo Trigueros, PhD’13, Music
Josiah Zayner, PhD’13, Biochemistry and Molecular Biology
Bill Hutchison, AM’12, AM’15, PhD Candidate, English
Anya Bershad, PhD Candidate, Psychiatry and Behavioral Neuroscience
The Arts, Science, and Culture Graduate Collaboration Grants encourage independent transdisciplinary research between students in the arts, social sciences, and sciences. Each group consists of two or more graduate students, with at least one in the arts and one in either science or the social sciences, who work together over the course of a year to investigate a subject from the perspectives offered by their respective disciplines. Funding for the Arts, Science, and Culture Graduate Collaboration Grants comes from the Office of the Provost and the Institute for Molecular Engineering at the University of Chicago.
FROM HYDE PARK TO HALO AND BEYOND: THE FUTURE OF VIDEO GAME DEVELOPMENT
4–5 p.m.
Saieh Hall for Economics, Room 021, 1160 E. 58th St.
Alex Seropian, SB’91, Founder and CEO, Industrial Toys
Patrick Jagoda, Assistant Professor, Department of English Language and Literature; Cofounder, Game Changer Chicago Design Lab
UChicago Careers in Journalism, Arts, and Media (UCIJAM), in partnership with the newly formed student organization UChicago Game Design, presents a conversation with visionary video game developer Alex Seropian. As cofounder of Bungie Software, Seropian is best known as the developer of the blockbuster Halo video game series. In 2004 he started Wideload Games, acquired by Disney in 2009, making him vice president of Disney Interactive Studios. In 2012 he left Disney to start Industrial Toys, a company focused on mobile games. Patrick Jagoda is a leading scholar of digital storytelling, game theory, and design.

BIG IDEAS, BIG POWER, BIG REVOLUTION: WHAT ROUSSEAU, ZUCKERBERG, AND GOOGLE’S ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE TELL US ABOUT OUR ECONOMIC AND POLITICAL FUTURE
4:30–5:45 p.m.
Oriental Institute, Breasted Hall, 1155 E. 58th St.
Joshua Cooper Ramo, AB’92, Co-Chief Executive Officer and Vice Chairman, Kissinger Associates
Tom Pritzker, JD’76, MBA’76, University Trustee; Executive Chairman, Hyatt Hotels Corporation; Chairman, Center for Strategic & International Studies Board of Trustees
Joshua Cooper Ramo, AB’92, author of the New York Times best seller The Age of the Unthinkable: Why New World Disorder Constantly Surprises Us and What We Can Do about It (Little, Brown and Company, 2009), feels our new Age of Network Power represents a shift as profound as the Enlightenment and the Industrial Revolution. Maybe more profound. In his new book, The Seventh Sense: Power, Fortune, and Survival in the Age of Networks (Little, Brown and Company, 2016), he tells the story of the instinct that explains everything from Donald Trump to ISIS to global economic fragility: the way in which linked systems in finance, information, trade, and other sources of power are cracking apart old institutions. Join Tom Pritzker in a discussion with Joshua Ramo about his new book, our view of the world, and a new way of seeing this connected age.

SATURDAY JUNE 4

THE CHICAGO MAROON JOURNALISM AND MEDIA EVENT
1:00–2:30 p.m.
Oriental Institute, Breasted Hall, 1155 E. 58th St.
For over 100 years, the Chicago Maroon has provided news, viewpoints, and coverage of the issues facing our campus and community. We invite alumni, readers, and friends of the Chicago Maroon to join our discussion about innovation in journalism, featuring student speakers and distinguished alumni. A reception will follow in Saieh Hall for Economics.

FUTURE OF K–12 ARTS EDUCATION
3–4 p.m.
Oriental Institute, Breasted Hall, 1155 E. 58th St.
Michael Christiano, Interim Senior Director of Museum Programs, Smart Museum of Art
Emily Hooper Lansana, Associate Director of Community Arts Engagement, Logan Center for the Arts
Enjoy an engaging conversation about a new large-scale effort designed for South Side Chicago educators and students to use the University as an essential asset for their arts learning and creative development.
